

I was born and raised in Exeter, New Hampshire and I love the seacoast. I also enjoy hiking up in the White Mountains, as well as camping during the Summer. I have always liked drawing and sketching as a hobby too. I am a graduate of the UNH Environmental Engineering program, and still enjoy going back to support the hockey and football teams. Although I love New Hampshire, I enjoy travelling and learning about history. I've been to cool places like Vienna, Austria and Budapest, Hungary and plan to visit many more old cities and witness the engineering of the past. I'm always up for trying new flavors of ice cream, but mint chocolate chip will always be my go to so you can usually catch me at your local ice cream shop.
